A LOCAL group of volunteers, dedicated to keeping Felinheli clean have been getting there hands dirty.

FelinDaclus, formed this year to clear rubbish and dog mess from the village's streets, organised a clear up, near St Mary's Church, and received some welcome help from county councillor Sian Gwenllian and Daniel Williams and Carolyn Pritchard, her colleagues on the community council.

Cllr Gwenllian said: "We cleared a small area that was strewn with old cans, broken bottles and general rubbish.

"It is near the bus stop, near St Mary's Church at the Caernarfon end of the village.

"It's obvious that people have been chucking rubbish over the wall on to private property which we have now cleared."
